

Mobil Agent

with Paul Stegmaier

Any good agent knows that making yourself accessible anywhere surely guarantees success in the real estate industry. The agent that has access to useful information and reliable data not only impresses their clients and customers, but also tends to close more deals. The mobile agent seminar will talk about the different technologies available to people who are always on the go, explain the pros and cons about them, and give agents a better understanding of which applications and devices work well for real estate.
